You Never Know
2004

Driven is Annelise LeCheminant's second full-length release, where she has incorporated binaural or "3-D" audio technology ("found sounds" similar to the airplane sound used in The Beatles song Back In The U.S.S.R.). Annelise describes her sound as "A cohesive blend of alternative groove-rock, gypsy jazz, and soul, with a little flavor from the saltshaker of a European cafe."

More About Annelise LeCheminant

Originally from Salt Lake City Utah, Annelise LeCheminant moved to Nashville in 2000 to pursue a music career. Within only a few short months, Annelise was playing at open mics and writers' nights all over town. She continued this trend for the next few years to fine-tune her skills as a songwriter and performer. In the fall of 2003, she began recording her debut album, You Never Know, with producer Matt Wilder, and in 2004, she released the 16-song CD on her own label MoxyShop Records.

Since the release of You Never Know, Annelise was voted "'Best of Davis County' Gifts for Music Connoisseurs" in her hometown of Salt Lake City. In September 2006, her song "Disconnected" was made part of a permanent installation at the Discovery Gateway Children's Museum in Salt Lake City, Utah, where children can interact with the song by mixing and recording. In December of 2006, Annelise also released a Christmas album, which immediately started getting airplay on North Carolina's WNCW.

With Annelise's new release Driven, the future looks brighter than ever for this soulful, eclectic artist.
